

A framed oil painting of a forest scene. In the foreground, a large, textured tree trunk stands prominently on the left, casting a shadow onto a path that leads into the distance. The ground is covered with a dense carpet of small, colorful flowers in shades of yellow, purple, and green. The background features more trees, some bare and some with green foliage, under a soft, hazy sky. The painting is enclosed in a simple, light-colored wooden frame.